Also, Stock Growers Bank urges you to beware of scams and criminals using fear/intimidation, trickery, urgency or disinformation related to the virus in an attempt to steal your sensitive, personal or account information. Watch out for strange calls, emails, texts or websites that look like they are coming from legitimate businesses or government agencies asking for information like social security number, usernames/passwords, account numbers, credit or debit card numbers, PINs etc. Stock Growers Bank will never request such information through email or text. Always check your account statements for official websites and customer service numbers and call those numbers directly rather than giving out information over the phone, email or text.

Please call us if you have any questions regarding Stock Growers Bank's plans to deal with this situation as it continues to change and evolve. We appreciate your business.
